COACHES

BERNIE SHIVELY was born at Oliver, Ill., and was graduated from high school at Paris, Ill., in 1922. After teaching a country school for a year, Shively completed his undergraduate work at the University of Illinois in the Class of 1927. While a member of the Illini, Shively made eight letters in football ^{wrestling} and track. He played guard on the football team and was named all-American guard in 1926. He also was captain of the Illini wrestling team, a member of the track team, specializing in the weights, and was captain of his freshman football team. He was a team-mate of the great "Red" Grange at Illinois. Shively is married and is the father of a daughter, Susanne, and a son, Douglas. He received his Master of Arts Degree at the University of Kentucky. He came to Kentucky in 1927 as line coach under Harry Gamage, holding that position until 1933, when, during an athletic shake-up, Gamage left and Shively went on the faculty in the Department of Physical Education. After another change in administration of the Athletic Department, Shively was made athletic director and line coach in 1938.

ALBERT DENNIS (AB) KIRWAN was born at Louisville where he was graduated from Male High School in 1921. He was captain of Male's undefeated football team his senior year. Enrolling at the University of Kentucky, he was elected captain of his freshman football team. Playing end and halfback, he was captain of the Wildcat football team in 1925. He also was a member of the track team, specializing in the 440-yard-dash. While still in the university, he was assistant to the dean of men. After his graduation from Kentucky he studied law at Louisville. He is licensed to practice law in Kentucky. While studying law at night, Kirwan coached football at Male High and later was named football coach at duPont Manual

ERNEST BIVELY was born at Oliver, Ill., and was graduated from high school at Kewanee, Ill., in 1921. After teaching a country school for a year, Bively completed his undergraduate work at the University of Illinois in the class of 1925. While a member of the Illinois football team, Bively made eight letters in football and track. He played center on the football team and was named all-American guard in 1924. He also was captain of the Illinois wrestling team, a member of the track team, specializing in the weights, and was captain of his freshman football team. He was a teammate of the great "Red" Grange at Illinois. Bively is married and is the father of a daughter, Barbara, and a son, Douglas. He received his master of Arts degree at the University of Kentucky. He came to Kentucky in 1927 as line coach under Harry Campbell, holding that position until 1933, when during an athletic shock-up, Campbell left and Bively went on the faculty in the Department of Physical Education. After another change in administration of the Athletic Department, Bively was made athletic director and line coach in 1935.

ALBERT DENNIS (AL) KIRWAN was born at Louisville where he was graduated from Male High School in 1921. He was captain of Male's undefeated football team his senior year. Enrolling at the University of Kentucky, he was elected captain of his freshman football team. Playing end and halfback, he was captain of the Wildcat football team in 1925. He also was a member of the track team, specializing in the 440-yard dash. While still in the university, he was assistant to the dean of men. After his graduation from Kentucky he studied law at Louisville. He is licensed to practice law in Kentucky. While studying law at night, Kirwan coached football at Male High and later was named football coach at Robert Marshall Training High School at Louisville. The boys that he coached at Manual went on to win the National high school football championship the next year. He was named head football coach at his alma mater in 1938. He is married and the father of two sons, William English (Brit), and Dennis.

JOE RUPERT was born in the coal mining community of Van Lear, Ky., and was graduated from high school at Catlettsburg, Ky., in 1931. He was captain of his high school basketball team two years and also was captain of his high school football team his senior year. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1935. At the university he captained the football and track teams his senior year. He was named on several all-Southern football selections as end. He is married and the father of a son, George. He returned to the University as a coach in 1938 after coaching at Catlettsburg High School.

FRANK MOSELEY was born at Montgomery, Ala., where he was graduated from Sidney Lanier High School. He was captain of his high school football and baseball teams. He was a star quarterback for Coach Frank Thomas at the University of Alabama, where he won six letters in football and baseball. He came to the University of Kentucky as an assistant coach in 1934 and received his Bachelor of Arts Degree from Kentucky. He is unmarried.

GENE MYERS was born at Harlan, Ky., in the heart of the coal fields. He attended Harlan High School, where he captained the football team and was graduated in 1933. At the University of Kentucky he played center and was captain of his freshman football team and was alternate captain of the team his senior year. He became an Twining High School at Louisville. The boys that he coached at Mannal went on to win the National high school football championship the next year. He was named head football coach at his alma mater in 1932. He is married and the father of two sons, William Emilian

(Bill) and Dennis.

JOE FURBER was born in the coal mining community of Van Lear, Ky., and was graduated from high school at Castletown, Ky., in 1931. He was captain of his high school basketball team two years and also was captain of his high school football team his senior year. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1935.
At the university he captained the football and track teams his senior year. He was named an overall all-Southern football selection as well. He is married and the father of a son, George. He returned to the University as a coach in 1938 after coaching at Castletown High School.

FRANK KOSLEY was born at Montgomery, Ala., where he was graduated from Sidney Lanier High School. He was captain of his high school football and basketball teams. He was a letterman back four coach Frank Thomas at the University of Alabama, where he won six letters in football and basketball. He came to the University of Kentucky as an assistant coach in 1934 and received his Bachelor of Arts Degree from Kentucky. He is married.

GEORGE MEERS was born at Hartford, Ky., in the heart of the coal field. He attended Hartford High School, where he captained the football team and was graduated in 1933. At the University of Kentucky he played center and was captain of his freshman football team and was alternate captain of the team his senior year. He became an assistant coach of the Wildcats in 1938. He is married.

ADOLPH RUPP is a native of Halstead, Kansas, where he captained his high school basketball team. He was graduated from high school in 1919 and from the University of Kansas in 1923. At Kansas he played basketball under Coach Phog Allen and captained the undefeated Kansas basketball team of 1923, playing guard. After his graduation he coached one year in the high school at Marshalltown, Iowa, and four years at Freeport, Ill. His teams at Freeport won 72 out of 81 games played. He came to Kentucky as head basketball coach in the fall of 1929. His Wildcat basketball teams won undisputed championships of the Southeastern Conference in 1933, 35, 37 and 39 and led in percentage standing seven of the nine years he has coached at Kentucky. He developed three all-America basketball players and eighteen all-conference players. He is married.

Football Prospects For 1939 at University of Kentucky

Although the Kentucky Wildcats, under a brand new coaching staff, were able to win only two out of nine games last season, prospects for 1939 are encouraging. Facing a hard schedule, the Wildcats should have an even chance of winning a majority of their nine games this fall although even the most optimistic fan would hardly expect Kentucky to hold its own against such powerful foes as Tennessee and Alabama.

assistant coach of the Wildcats in 1938. He is married.

ADOLPH KUPP is a native of Haintsed, Kansas, where he graduated from his high school basketball team. He was graduated from high school in 1935 and from the University of Kansas in 1937. At Kansas he played basketball under Coach Frank Allen and captured the undefeated Kansas basketball team of 1937, playing guard. After his graduation he coached one year in the high school at Haintsed, Iowa, and four years at Freeport, Ark. His team at Freeport won 27 out of 29 games played. He came to Kentucky as head basketball coach in the fall of 1939. His Wildcats basketball team won without challenge all of the Southern Conference in 1939, 38, 37 and 36 and led in percentage winning seven of the nine years he has coached at Kentucky. He developed three All-American basketball players and eighteen All-Southern players. He is married.

Basketball Prospects for 1939 at University of Kentucky

Although the Kentucky Wildcats, under a brand new coaching staff, were able to win only two out of nine games last season, prospects for 1939 are encouraging. Facing a hard schedule, the Wildcats should have an even chance of winning a majority of their nine games this fall although even the most optimistic fan would hardly expect Kentucky to hold its own against such powerful foes as Tennessee and Alabama.

When Ab Kirwan took over the coaching job last fall he found football in a deplorable condition at Kentucky after an upheaval that resulted in the resignation of Chet Wynne as head coach following a disastrous season. The material at hand was not of the best and discipline was at a low ebb. All but one of the regulars from the preceding season had been graduated or disabled by injuries.

In addition to three players on whom Kirwan banked to be bulwarks of his 1938 team, who were lost to the squad because they failed to respond to operations aimed at correcting disabilities, three outstanding linemen were dismissed from the squad early in the season for disciplinary measures. One of the best prospects for a halfback position left school.

So it was with a skeleton squad with few reserves that Kirwan and his assistants began the 1938 season. After winning their first two games against weak opposition, the Wildcats lost every other game on their schedule. But the fans remained loyal and there was a minimum of criticism.

The one cheerful ray was the excellent freshman team of last fall which included several talented backs and linemen. These youngsters came along fast during spring practice as did sophomores who performed nobly on the varsity last fall.

As only four lettermen were lost by graduation in June, Kirwan will have a more cheerful outlook on life when the practice season begins September 1. The squad is considerably larger than it was last year, with adequate reserves, more speed in the backfield, more power in the line and more experience behind the players.

The hardest position to fill will be the center post vacated by Sherman Hinkebein, and there still will be a lack of enough tackles, but the team should be considerably more potent in all other

When Al Kitten took over the coaching job last fall he found football is a desperate condition at Kentucky after an upheaval that resulted in the resignation of Coach Thorne as head coach following a disastrous season. The material at hand was not at the best and discipline was at a low ebb. All but one of the regulars from the preceding season had been graduated or disabled by injuries.

In addition to these players on whom Kitten counted to be the mainstay of his 1938 team, who were lost to him again because they failed to respond to operations aimed at correcting disabilities, three outstanding linemen were dismissed from the squad early in the season for disciplinary reasons. One of the best prospects for a halfback position left school.

So Kitten with a skeleton squad with few reserves that Kitten and his assistants began the 1938 season. After winning their first two games against weak opposition, the Wildcats lost every other game on their schedule. But the fans remained loyal and there was a minimum of criticism.

The one character trait was the excellent teamwork of last fall which included several talented backs and linemen. These youngsters came along fast during spring practice as did sophomores who performed nobly on the varsity last fall.

The squad is considerably larger than it was last year, with adequate reserves, more speed in the backfield, more power in the line and more experience behind the players.

The biggest position to fill will be the center post vacated by Sherman Hinkbein, and there still will be a lack of enough backs, but the team should be considerably more potent in all other positions. Especially encouraging is the crop of good ends, a department in which the Wildcats have been weak for many years. But in Bill McCubbin and James Hardin, the end coach, Frank Moseley, believes he has developed a pair of flankmen equal to any in the South.

Veteran halfbacks who should cause much grief to the enemy this fall are Carl Combs and Dave Zoeller, both of whom were sophomores last year. Wilce Carnes and Charles Ishmael were good fullbacks last year and both showed improvement in spring practice.

Joe Bailey, 195-pound junior, who was the third string center last year, should be able to fill Hinkebein's shoes at center. Outstanding candidates for line positions are Tom Spickard, Pete Vires, Bob Palmer and Emmet Willoughby, guards; Luke Linden, John Eibner, Ed Jacobs and Walter Reid, tackles. All are veterans.

The most promising graduates from last year's freshman team are Noah Mullins, halfback who runs the 100-yard-dash in less than 10 seconds; Ermal Allen, a passing wizard halfback; Sam Hulette and Jack Waters, husky guards; Robert Beeler and George Schlagle, tackles; and Allen Parr, end.

As was the case last year, Joe Shepherd, senior quarterback, will do most of the punting. Shepherd is captain of the team. Although not a phenomenal punter, Shepherd is dependable, getting off his kicks quickly with good elevation and fair distance. He is a good blocker and pass receiver and uses good judgment in calling plays.

When the Wildcats go into their opening game they probably will line up as follows:

position. Especially encouraging is the crop of good ends, a departure from in which the Wildcats have been weak for many years. Not in Bill McQuinn and James Harkin, the only ones, Frank Hocking, however, he has developed a pair of flankmen equal to any in the South.

Veteran halfbacks who should cause much grief to the enemy this fall are Sam Gomez and Dave Ebeling, both of whom were sophomores last year. Also Barnes and Charles Johnson were good fullbacks last year and both showed improvement in spring practice.

Joe Bailey, 135-pound junior, who was the third string center last year, should be able to fill Hinkley's shoes as center. Outstanding candidates for line positions are Tom Shickney, Pete Vines, Bob Palmer and Frank Wilkerson. Guard: Luke Lindsay, John Ebbert, Ed Jacobs and Walter Rife, tackle. All are veterans.

The most promising candidates from last year's freshman team are Noah Williams, halfback who runs the 100-yard dash in less than 10 seconds; Ernie Allen, a passer with good ballcock; Sam Fulkerson and Jack Watson, heavy guards; Robert Butler and Robert Hocking, tackles; and Allen Parr, end.

As was the case last year, Joe Shephard, center par excellence, will do most of the punting. Shephard is captain of the team. Although not a phenomenal punter, Shephard is dependable, getting off his kicks easily with good elevation and fair distance. He is a good blocker and pass receiver and does good judgment in calling plays.

When the Wildcats go into their opening game they probably will line up as follows:

 Center -- Bailey
 Right guard -- Palmer
 Right tackle -- Linden
 Right end -- McCubbin
 Quarterback -- Shepherd
 Right halfback -- Combs

Outstanding Wildcat Candidates for 1939 Season

JOE SHEPHERD, senior quarterback and captain of the team, served as captain of the Louisville Manual Training High School football team in 1935 when his present coach, Ab Kirwan, was football coach at Manual. He has earned two football letters as a Wildcat and was the "Iron Man" of the squad in 1938, playing throughout all but one game without having time out called for him a single time. He seldom carries the ball but does most of the punting and is an excellent pass receiver and blocker. He is a clever field general. He was a member of the all-Kentucky high school team of 1935. Besides playing football, he also is a splendid baseball player and was regular third baseman on the Wildcat nine last spring. He is in the College of Arts and Sciences.

JOE BAILEY, a junior in football, will endeavor to uphold the reputation made by superb Wildcat centers in past years. He saw little action last fall because there were two fine centers, Sherman Hinkebein and Harold Black, both seniors, ranked ahead of him. With an ideal build, a fighting heart and a savage love of the game, Bailey has the ability and his coaches believe he is the answer to their prayer. A native of Paducah, he was an all-Kentucky high school center. He was president of his class at the University in 1938. He is in the College of Education.

TOM SPICKARD, dependable guard, is the "hard luck" member of the squad. After taking part in only two games his sophomore year, he was declared ineligible scholastically through a technicality and was not allowed to complete the season on the team although a regular. He is married and will receive his degree from the College of Agriculture next June.

Outstanding Wildcat Candidates for 1933 Season

JOE SHEPHERD, senior quarterback and captain of the team, served as captain of the football team. He has earned two football letters as a Wildcat and was the "Iron Man" of the squad in 1932, playing throughout all but one game without having time out called for him a single time. He seldom carries the ball but does most of the punting and is an excellent game receiver and blocker. He is a clever field general. He was a member of the all-Berkshire high school team of 1930. Besides playing football, he also is a splendid baseball player and was regular third baseman on the Wildcat nine last season. He is in the College of Arts and Sciences.

JOE BALLEW, a junior in football, will endeavor to uphold the reputation made by superb Wildcat centers in past years. His new little action last fall showed there were two line centers, Sherman Dickinson and Harold Black, both seniors, ranked ahead of him. With an ideal build, a fighting heart and a never-a-late-to-the-game, Ballew has the ability and his coaches believe he is the answer to their prayer. A native of Berkshire, he was an all-Berkshire high school center. He was president of his class at the University in 1932. He is in the College of Education.

TOM BRIGGARD, dependable guard, in the "third luck" number of the squad. After taking part in only two games his sophomore year, he was declared ineligible academically through a technicality and was not allowed to complete the season on the team although a regular. He is married and will receive his degree from the College of Agriculture next June.

PETE VIRES, husky senior guard, is a product of Louisville Manual, where he was an all-Kentucky guard, playing for Ab Kirwan. His mates call him "Greek." Vires was playing fine football last fall when he suffered a leg injury in the Georgia Tech game that kept him on the bench for the remainder of the season. He recovered and, during spring practice, made it plain that he will be a regular this fall. A senior in the College of Arts and Sciences, he is a physical education major.

JOHN ROBERT EIBNER, "Big John," has what it takes for the job. Fairly fast for a big man (he weighs 245 pounds), Eibner is a vicious tackler and smashing blocker. He was handicapped by a leg injury suffered early last fall in the Xavier game but has recovered. He was captain of his high school team at Jeanette, Penn., and made the all-State football team. He is a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences. If he isn't a regular tackle this fall all signs will have failed.

LUKE LINDEN, weighing 225 pounds and built like a locomotive, Linden came to the University from the coal mining community of Blue Diamond, in the Kentucky Mountains. He had never played football before enrolling at the University and vows that he never had on a pair of shoes until he came to Lexington. Winner of a letter in football two years ago, Linden was considered a sure shot for a regular berth last fall when he was suspended from the squad. As hard and tough as they come, Luke takes full advantage of his powerful build and strength. Fast enough, he is a power both on offense and defense and is an ideal tackle. He is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences.

PIERCE VITTES, heavy weight guard, is a graduate of Louisville Normal, where he was an All-Kentucky guard, playing for Ab Kirtman. His mother calls him "Percy". Vittes was playing fine football last fall when he suffered a leg injury in the Georgia Tech game that kept him out of the bench for the remainder of the season. He recovered and, during spring practice, made it plain that he will be a regular this fall. A senior in the College of Arts and Sciences, he is a physical education major.

JOHN ROBERT EMMER, "Big John", has what it takes for the job. Tall, fast for a big man (he weighs 215 pounds), Emmert is a vicious blocker and mauling blocker. He was handicapped by a leg injury suffered early last fall in the Xavier game but has recovered. He was captain of his high school team at Jeannette, Penn., and was the All-State football team. He is a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences. If he isn't a regular back this fall all teams will have failed.

DUKE LINDEN, weighing 225 pounds and built like a locomotive, Linden came to the University from the coal mining community of Blue Diamond in the Kentucky Mountains. He had never played football before enrolling at the University and vows that he never had on a pair of shoes until he came to Lexington. Junior or a factor in football two years ago, Linden was considered a sure shot for a national berth last fall when he was suspended from the squad. As hard and tough as they come, Duke takes full advantage of his powerful build and strength. Fast enough, he is a power both on offense and defense and is an ideal tackle. He is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences.

WILLIAM ED McCUBBIN, Kentucky's prime candidate for all conference honors this fall, has the speed, ability and physical make-up that make him ideally qualified for his job of end. When he played football for Coach Kirwan at Louisville Manual he was almost overlooked because of his small size. But McCubbin has developed into a 190-pounder with a world of speed and power. One of the best pass receivers in Wildcat football history, this lad also is a deadly blocker who loves contact. He has been a regular end for two seasons. He is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences.

JAMES HARDIN, native of New Albany, Ind., just across the Ohio River from Louisville, is the most promising junior end to play for Kentucky in years. He is one of the swiftest runners on the squad and, as a member of the track team, consistently ran the 100-yard-dash in 10 seconds. He was captain of his high school football team and made the all-Indiana team. A serious student, Hardin is a junior in the College of Commerce.

WILCE CARNES is almost a native Kentuckian, hailing from Cincinnati, Ohio, "one minute from Covington", where he was one of the most popular athletes ever graduated from Withrow High. While a student there he was captain of his high school football team two years and also captained the baseball and basketball teams. As a Wildcat he has been a regular fullback two years and played second base on the baseball team. Carnes packs lots of speed, is a hard-running ball carrier, good pass receiver and a fine defensive player. He is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences.

CARL COMBS, a versatile, fleet-footed athlete, won his spurs as a Wildcat halfback last fall as a sophomore although handicapped by an early-season injury. An elusive runner, he is able to get off to an

WILLIAM E. MCGUBBIN, Kentucky's prize candidate for all sportsman honors this fall, has the speed, ability and physical make-up that make him ideally qualified for his job of end. When he plays football for Coach Kistner at Louisville he was almost overwhelmed because of his small size. But McGubbin has developed into a 190-pounder with a world of speed and power. One of the best pass receivers in Wilkes football history, this fall is a deadly blocker who loves contact. He has been a regular end for two seasons. He is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences.

JAMES HARTIN, native of New Albany, Ind., just across the Ohio River from Louisville, is the most promising junior end to play for Kistner this year. He is one of the wildest runners on the squad and as a member of the track team, consistently ran the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds. He was captain of his high school football team and made the all-Indiana team. A serious student, Hartin is a junior in the College of Commerce.

WILCOE GARNER is almost a native Kentuckian, having been born in Ohio, "some fifteen miles from Covington", where he was one of the most popular athletes ever graduated from Wilkes High. While a student there he was captain of his high school football team two years and also captained the baseball and basketball teams. As a Wilkes he has been a regular fullback two years and played second base on the baseball team. Garner packs lots of speed, is a hard-running ball carrier, good pass receiver and a fine defensive player. He is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences.

CARL CURBER, a versatile, fleet-footed athlete, won his spurs as a Wilkes fullback last fall as a sophomore although handicapped by an early-season injury. An elusive runner, he is able to get off to an amazingly fast start. Also he is a good passer and pass receiver. He plays the safety position on defense and is a fine punt returner. At Hazard High School he was captain of his basketball team and made the all-State basketball team as a guard. His nickname is "Hoot".

DAVID ZOELLER, a sophomore sensation halfback last fall, is a member of a famous family of athletes from New Albany, Ind. He is a rugged line-plunger as well as a speedy open-field runner as Alabama players can testify. Against the Crimson Tide last fall he broke away for a touchdown run of nearly 75 yards. His spectacular passing and ball carrying featured the Kentucky-Georgia Tech thriller last fall at Atlanta. He is a member of the track team, specializing in the javelin throw. He is a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences.

NOAH MULLIN, sophomore from Versailles, was the most talked of member of last year's fine freshman team. Playing fullback, he scored touchdowns on all the Kitten opponents, most of them on long runs. With a playing style much like that of "Shipwreck" Kelly, who was probably Kentucky's most famous halfback, this sophomore can outrun a jackrabbit. He does the century consistently in :9.9. Although rated third in the list of fullbacks, he is certain to play plenty of football this fall.

ERMAL ALLEN, a mite of a lad but a broth of a boy, came to Kentucky last fall as a freshman. He didn't attract a lot of attention until spring practice when he blossomed into one of the sweetest forward passers ever to wear a Wildcat uniform. Not only that, but he demonstrated that he is a fine punter and can really go places carrying the ball. He also was a star on the freshman basketball Playing fullback, he scored touchdowns on all the fifteen opponents, most of them on long runs. With a playing style much like that of "Shipwreck" Kelly, who was probably Kentucky's most famous halfback, this sophomore can outrun a linebacker. He does the century consistently in 19.9. Although not a thing in the line of fullbacks, he is certain to play plenty in football this fall.

WESLEY ALLEN, a wide of a lad but a brother of a boy, came to Kentucky last fall as a freshman. He didn't attract a lot of attention until spring practice when he blossomed into one of the sweetest forward passers ever to wear a Wildcats uniform. Not only that, but he demonstrated that he is a fine punter and can really go places carrying the ball. He also was a star on the freshman basketball team. His home is at Morristown, Tenn.

University of Kentucky Football Paragraphs

Among the eight sophomore candidates for a halfback position on the University of Kentucky football squad this fall is Richard "Dick" Kelly, from Springfield. He is a half-brother of the famous "Shipwreck" Kelly, Wildcat halfback who burned up Southern gridirons a decade ago, who later starred in professional football and who now is part owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers football team.

Of the 54 candidates on the University of Kentucky football squad this year, 22 served as captains of their high school football teams and fifteen were named on all-State teams while in high school. The former captains are Charles Ishmael, Pikeville; Bernard Johnson, Lexington; Lloyd Ramsey, Somerset; Tom Zinn, Burnsville, W. Va.; Alex Zechella, Newport; Bill Goatley, Springfield; Charles Martin, Harlan; Carl Combs, Hazard; Bill Black, Paducah; Wilce Carnes, Cincinnati, Ohio; Tom Spickard, Princeton; John Eibner, Jeanette, Penn.; Jim Hardin, New Albany, Ind.; Joe Shepherd, Louisville Manual;

Burchell Helton, Alva; Bob Palmer, Mount Sterling; Sam Hulette, Ashland; Jack Waters, Louisville Male; Bob Beeler, Bardstown; Phil Scott, Birmingham, Ala; Ed Gholson, Paducah, and Harry Denham, Mount Sterling.

All-Kentucky high school players on the University of Kentucky football squad this fall are Junior Jones, Louisville Manual; Alex Zechella, Newport; Bill Black, Paducah; Joe Bailey, Paducah; Pete Vires, Louisville Manual; Bill Tucker, Louisville Manual; Joe Shepherd, Louisville Manual; Noah Mullin, Versailles; Sam Hulette, Ashland; Jack Waters, Louisville Male, and Ed Gholson, Paducah. In addition, Tom Zinn, Burnsville, W. Bert Johnson, Kentucky's great halfback of 1934-35-36, has been playing professional football since he finished the sport at the University, first with the Brooklyn Dodgers, now with the Chicago Bears. Now realizing the advantage of a college degree, which he failed to win when his class was graduated, Bert came back to the University for the spring term in order to earn additional credits. He intends to keep it up until he has his sheepskin.

Ralph Kercheval, one of the greatest punters ever developed in the South, who was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1934, is dividing his time between football and the thoroughbred horse breeding industry. He plays halfback for the Brooklyn Dodgers during the football season and then manages a Woodford County horse farm during the rest of the year.

Marshall Holton, Alvin; Bob Palmer, Henry; St. Louis; Sam Holton, Ashland; Jack Waters, Louisville; Mike; Bob Holton, Bardonia;

Joe Shepherd, captain of the University of Kentucky football team for 1939, served as captain of his high school team at Louisville Manual when his present coach, Ab Kirwan, was coach at Manual. Sherman Hinkebein, the 1938 Wildcat football captain, also had been a Manual captain under Kirwan. Shepherd, a quarterback, is the first backfield man chosen as captain by the Wildcats in several years.

The University of Kentucky does not give contracts to members of the athletic coaching staff. The coaches are employed for no fixed period and are placed on the same status as members of the teaching staff. Head coaches and the athletic director are rated as professors, while assistant coaches are ranked as assistant professors or instructors.

Ab Kirwan, who is entering on his second season as head football coach at the University of Kentucky, has two hobbies -- books and bridge. Kirwan was captain of the Wildcat football team in 1925.

The University of Kentucky began its football relationship with the Virginia Military Institute Cadets back in 1892, making the 47-year-old rivalry one of the oldest in the South. The Cadets defeated Kentucky by 34 to 0 that year. That was the second year that football had been played at Kentucky and the first year there was a coach. Other Kentucky football rivalries that began in the past century were those with Tennessee, Vanderbilt and Washington and Lee.

Joe Shephard, captain of the University of Kentucky football team for 1935, served as captain of his high school team at Louisville. When his present coach, Al Kistner, was coach at Marshall, Shephard was Marshall's 1935 football captain, also had been a Marshall captain under Kistner. Shephard, a quarterback, is the first Louisville man chosen as captain by the Wildcats in several years.
